Rexburg Idaho YSA 9th Stake

To Whom It May Concern:

I wish to recommend Steve Vest as a capable, competent, and industrious young man who would be a wonderful addition to any team. I have worked closely with Steve for the past year, and continue to be impressed with his initiative and intellect. He has surprising insight into what needs to be done to achieve goals. I sincerely would want him as part of any team I was creating and am certain that you will not regret giving him a chance to work with you.

Steve falls into a category of employee that is hard to find. While many people are creative, or reliable, or friendly and cooperative, few successfully combine all of these characteristics at the same time. Throughout my time with Steve I have been impressed with his ability to analyze a problem, create a solution, and implement his ideas in a way the results in success. I have seen him demonstrate ability with technology and logistics as he has helped our organization prepare for events and overcome challenges. In addition to his insightful, reliable initiative he always handles himself in a professional and personable manner. I really can think of very few people that I could unreservedly recommend for employment any easier than I can Steve. He has been a tremendous blessing to us on many occasions. He is one of those people that takes any assignment and fulfills it so masterfully that the assignment seems more significant when he finishes with it than when he was given it.

If you act on my recommendation and hire Steve, in six months, you will want to contact me and thank me for giving you the faith to do so. Obviously, Steve has earned my respect and best wishes. I hope he will have the opportunity to do the same with you. Please feel free to contact me personally for further information.

Sincerely,

STANLEY W. KIVETT
Department of Religious Education
Brigham Young University Idaho
kivetts@byui.edu
208-496-3946